Q: What could the instructor do to make this course better?

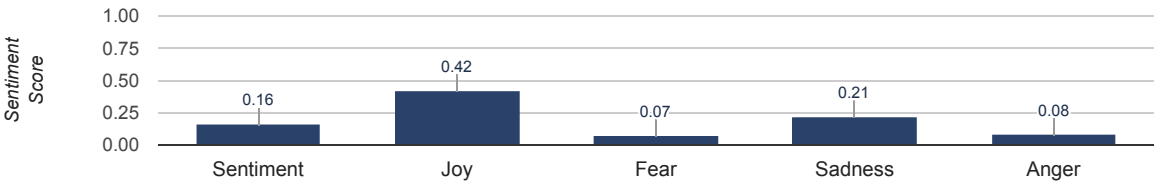

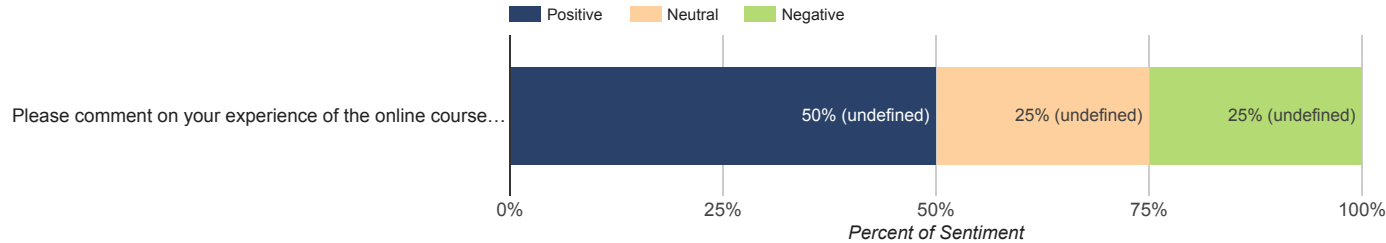

- 1 You can be a strict but excellent lecturer, responsible for administering challenging quizzes and exams while delivering engaging, informative lectures that hold students' attention most of the time. This approach ensures that students are confident in all course material and understand what is important. Or, you might be an average or below-average instructor who is lenient with exams and quizzes. In this case, students may be content simply to participate and get good grades.
